

SEPTEMBER 2010

CMMC OPEN ON WEEKENDS UNTIL OCTOBER 10

To Our Members and Friends,

If you haven't had a chance to visit the new exhibits as yet, the Chatham Marconi Maritime Center is extending its days open. The Exhibition at the Center will remain open on Saturdays, 10 am to 4 pm and Sundays, 1 pm to 4 pm, for the rest of September through Sunday, October 10th. The admission to the Center continues to be free as a way to thank Chatham and the community for its continued support.

Over 2,180 visitors have enjoyed the Center since it opened on August 1st. Visitors have expressed a strong interest that the CMMC remain open during the 'shoulder season' and we have received very positive comments such as "a very professional exhibit" and "I have to leave now, but I'm coming back and I'm bringing my friends."

The Chatham Marconi Maritime Center opened its doors to the public on August 1, 2010 with a ribbon cutting ceremony. As you know, CMMC members have worked towards this day for eight years and have many people to thank, especially you, our members, who have supported us over the years with your memberships and donations to the Capital Fund and the 2010 Annual Fund. Our opening could not have occurred without your help.

Looking forward to seeing you in September through Sunday, October 10th of Columbus Day Weekend.

President,

Charles Bartlett
